STONE HILTON ANNOUNCES ADDITION OF NEW PARTNER TO THE FIRM

August 7, 2024

AUSTIN – Stone Hilton has recently added veteran litigator Elizabeth Brown Fore as a partner in the firm.

Ms. Brown Fore brings a wealth of experience to Stone Hilton having worked in private practice and in the public sector. She was a litigation partner at DLA Piper and Sprinkle IP Law Group, and previously worked at Morgan Lewis. She also worked at the Texas Attorney General's Office as a trial lawyer and as Chief of two different divisions, the Administrative Law Division and the Healthcare Program Enforcement Division.

"We are very excited to have Elizabeth join the firm," said Judd Stone. "Elizabeth's specialized experience and long history of winning in federal court litigation significantly expands our firm's ability to take on high profile cases. We can't wait to deliver this success to our clients."

In private practice, Ms. Brown Fore enjoyed a reputation as a formidable litigator, particularly in patent and IP cases. During her time in the public sector, she handled several significant pieces of litigation for the Texas Attorney General's office. Ms. Brown Fore was the first-chair attorney in litigation to enforce the historic Texas tobacco settlement agreement, winning an estimated $240 million dollar judgment for the State of Texas, and tried an institutional reform class action brought against the State as the first-chair attorney.

"I am honored to join Stone Hilton as a partner. This opportunity allows me to collaborate with a team of highly respected professionals dedicated to excellence. I look forward to leveraging my trial and litigation experience to support our clients" said Ms. Brown Fore.

Ms. Brown Fore is an Austin native and obtained her law degree from the University of Texas School of Law.

More news to come as Stone Hilton will make additional announcements in the near future.
