AUSTIN – Stone Hilton announced that Noah M. Schottenstein, a distinguished former trial attorney with the U.S. Department of Justice and Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Texas, has joined the firm as a partner. Noah brings decades of experience working on the most sophisticated government enforcement and investment fund matters.

Noah's government service includes critical leadership in nationally significant enforcement matters, including the DOJ-led interagency Financial Fraud Enforcement Task Force, the landmark $25 billion National Mortgage Settlement, and SIGTARP oversight. He has represented the United States in high-stakes litigation before the U.S. Supreme Court and in investigations involving investment fraud, constitutional challenges, and administrative disputes.

In private practice, Noah has built a global reputation advising clients on complex investment fund matters. His practice spans both the boardroom and the courtroom, including representing clients in all types of disputes, serving as fiduciary and governance counsel, and advising on a wide variety of fund-related transactions and restructurings. He works with investors in, and sponsors of, investment funds on issues no matter where they arise across the world.

Prior to joining Stone Hilton, Noah was the co-lead of the investment funds disputes practice at a major international law firm, where he advised clients on both domestic and cross-border disputes and special situations.

"We are thrilled to welcome Noah to Stone Hilton," said Judd Stone, partner at Stone Hilton. "His rare combination of government enforcement insight and global investment fund experience will offer immense value to our clients. Noah's ability to navigate the most complex regulatory, litigation, and cross-border challenges aligns perfectly with the firm's mission to deliver sophisticated, high-impact legal counsel."
